Angie Presents .

1950 Oak Leaves

THIS BOOK WAS PRINTED BY EDWARDS AND BROUGH-ION OF RAIEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA. THE PAPER USED WAS WARREN'S LISTRO AND THE TYPE BASK-ERVILLE. ENGRAVINGS WERE MADE BY THE LYXCH-BURG ENGRAVING COMPANY OF VIRGINIA: THE ART WORK WAS DONE BY THE SITUENTS OF MERE-DITH COLLEGE UNDER THE DIRECTION OF DONNA WAISTON, AND THE PHOTOGRAPHY BY FRANCIS LAVERONE JOHNSON OF CHAPLE HILL, HARRY E. GOOPPER, AND BY MEREDITH SITUENTS AND FACULTY.

Dedication

Because of her genuine intellect, because of her sincere friendliness, because of her kindly patience in showing us "a more excellent way," we gratefully dedicate this, the 1950 OAK LEAVES, to

Dr. Julia Hamlet Harris

Goreword

At our fiftieth anniversary last fall Meredith College had an especial guest—Meredith's own guardian angel. Angie descended on us for the purpose of attending our anniversary celebration, but she was so delighted with life on our campus that we had little trouble persuading her to stay the entire year. She was a pert little miss, getting into everything, joining in all our activities—so we coaxed her to be the junior editor of the 1950 OAK LEAVES. We hope she will be as close to you as she has been to us who have worked with her. It has been a good year and there is no one better than Angie to tell us about it

To Meredith College Students:

This issue of OAK LEAVES arouses our immediate interest because it serves to "bind up the testimony" of happy fellowship and worthy achievement in this college year. Through the years to come its appeal will steadily increase if it proves to be not our epitaph but a prephetic chapter in the texts of our lives.

My kindest personal regards and best wishes for each of you.

LEISHMAN A. PEACOCK, Ph.D.

Dean

As members of the class of 1950 you will cherish the distinction of being the first to use the new auditorium at commencement. I add personal good wishes for the years ahead to greetings from the entire faculty and staff.

LILLIAN GRANT, A.M. Dean of Women

The OAK LEAVES, with its pictorial records of many happy hours, plays a valuable and indispensable part in our lives at Meredith. I count it a rare privilege to be a part of Meredith life and wish for each of you that its influence may serve as a sustaining challenge.

LILLIAN GRANT

ZENO MARTIN, A.B. Bursar and Treasurer

It has been a pleasure for me to share some of your problems and experiences during your college days.

The Mind of The Faculty

Who knows the mind of the faculty? Not the members of the faculty if we except those who will speak only "when no dogs bark," those who have never broken the seal of the ideas signed in their novitiate. Requiescant in pace! In his essay, "The Ideal Teacher," George Herbert Palmer says, "Harvard College pays me for doing what I would gladly pay it to let me do," a sentiment more common among teachers than trustees suspect. Perhaps we "gladly teach" because of the necessity of meeting changes, because of the necessity of realizing principles in a world of change. In our miniature community it would be easy to live on the exhiliration of change, content -nay, delighted-not to have "to step in the same river twice;" it would be easy to set up a centre of rest in our affections and convictions. But the effort to establish a centre of rest in, and in spite of, the changes of a changed universe, to reconcile "perfect energy and repose" makes teaching the most difficult—and the most joyful of all professions. Orare est laborare,

Graduation is one of those unexpected phenomena; for three and a half years it remains tucked away safely in the far distant future, and then without sufficient warning, it jumps suddenly from the calendar, a reality.

Crowded into the four years are many happy memories that are to be preserved. Among these are recollections of the Freshman Year, the first rung on the ladder that will end with a sheep-skin. That was the year almost all of North Carolina put in a twelfth grade and we began with only eighty-eight members. Palio fell on Sadie Hawkins Day and our class dressed as Daisy Mar, Lena the Hyena, and other Al Capp characters. Upon our return for the Sophomore Year, we began to find our niches and work toward chosen goals, managing in the menatrine to win the stunt cup with an original skit, "There Shall Be No Night." As juniors we saw a year with a purpose, a working to achieve honors and responsibilities that come with being a senior. Again we succeeded at Stunt with our "Foul Play." In the spring we gave an Oriental Junior-Senior and managed to balance or budget as well.

At last we came to our Senior Year, a culmination of all that preceded. With only sixty four members, of whom twenty six were original members, we won Palio and achieved a second rating at Stunt. Four years have rushed by and a variety of experiences will be remembered with mixed emotions.

The value of a diploma cannot be told completely. It is something of the four years of study, of making friends, of cooperation with others and, in short, of a preparation for emerging from the small college world into a fuller life. The class of '50 graduates confident that as a class and as individual members, we have contributed much to our Alma Mater and received much from her,

Annette, Trip, Bunny, and A. G .- our officers.

BETTY JANE HEDGEPETH

Some of us arrived on campus a whole week early this fall, just to prove that we were finally juniors and entitled to the privilege of hailing freshmen and transfers. We really struggled that first week trying to connect oft-written names with unfamiliar faces.

But Orientation Week was only the beginning of our Junior Year. In bright columns of "Good Neighbors" we marched into second place at Palio. And it was on Stunt Night that we presented our cherry-red version of Going Doten.

The newest juniors were welcomed into our midst at the coffee for transfers. And later, Astro Hall was filled to the brim with "big and little sisters" having their traditional party. Yet it was the spring with our Junior-Senior Banquet, that brought the class ingenuity to the forefront.

The year was one of new responsibilities, new ideas, and the welcome assurance that our Junior Year would not be our last at Meredith.

Julia, Nancy, Hedge, and Sandra lead the rising seniors.

Onward, onward we march along our way as the class of '52. This was the Sophomore Year. As counsellors we had our hand in Orientation Week; we danced to "Where, O Where Is My Little Nellie," at the Corn Huskin' Bee; we were very lady-like southern belles at Palio and walked off with first place in Stunt. Christmas caroling and after-midnight parties ushered in the holidays. Next came exams and then, miraculously, a clean slate. In the merry months of spring we sent our beauties to the May Court and watched the grass grow green—it was a sure sign of summer! June brought graduation to our "big sisters" and in final tribute we gladly carried their daisy-chain on class day.

Jean, Sally, Janet, and Mary Evelyn led their class in a successful year.

At last it's over—the entrance exams, the confusing days of Orientation Week, the looking forward to week-ends and home, the disappointment of no mail, the first nerve-wracking examinations, and the mad rush for chaperones on Saturdays and Sundays. From the first days here at Meredith, we have shared with one another class spirit, laughter, and last but not least, classwork. The prizes we won at the Corn Huskin' Bec, the winning of third place in Palio with our cokes and washing machines, and our breakfast for our big sisters have brought us together as one—the class of '53.

We reflect with pride upon the part of our life at Meredith which is completed and we cast eager glances to the future which we hope to share as sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

Nancy, Pat Smathers, Dot, and Pat Dula are looking forward to three more years.

Student Government Association

Student Government at Meredith is more than just "student government." By the experience of self-governing in all phases of college life the members of the Association are encouraged to attach to everyday living a high sense of responsibility which will transcend dormitory and class regulations and provide better citizens for the world. The Student Government Council, which is composed of twenty-six members, elected by popular vote and representing all non-resident as well as resident students, works with a Faculty Advisory Committee and the Faculty Committee on Student Government. The main task and ideal of the Student Council is not merely that of governing, but it strives to maintain a well-rounded college life and to uphold the Christian standards of Meredith.

Freshman and Transfer Counsellors

"What shall I do now that I'm here?" Many a freshman or transfer wonders how to go about starting a new life in a new environment. The duty of the counsellor is to aid her group of new students throughout the year in facing problems and developing wholesome attitudes toward college life. Then comes the problem of meeting new, interesting people—boys, for intance. The counsellors hold "open house" in the hut on Sunday afternoons. Between church and B. T. U. the new girl rushes down to the hut and finds a State College boy just waiting for her.

Meetings of each group are held every month. Discussions on manners, traditions, the honor code, and numerous other topics are held. The counsellors are all eager to know their girls and to help them in every possible way.

A lovely year, don't you think? We Day Students do. We got what is commonly known as a "large charge" from the little things—Monday morning conferences on what happened on the previous weekend; endless bridge games; the inevitable "sacksuhsaniches" at lunch; the occasional splurge trip to Roy's if we could persuade the bus driver to take us to the gate free; being proud that four of us won first prizes in the student art exhibit—nothing really world-shaking, but just the same we get a sort of glow when we think about the past year. This year we can glow even more than usual, because the century wasn't the only thing that turned—so did the Day Student rooms. Somebody (probably Santa Clause) saw to it that over the Christmas holidays the rooms got a new coat of paint, a new couch, more chairs, and glory be, four new lamps. Come up to see the transformation yourself any time; we'll be glad to see you.

The system of elections at Meredith is directed by the Nominating Committee, a group representing presidents of the major organizations and classes, editors-in-chief of the publications, the college marshal, and Dean of Women, and three faculty members chosen by the committee. Nominations for campus offices, with the exception of class offices, are submitted to this group for final selection, and all officials for holding elections are appointed by the committee, of which the Chief Counsellor is the chairman.

• The Nominating Committee endeavors to aid in the conducting of fair and democratic campaigns through the use of stunts, bulletin boards, and posters. At all times the qualifications of the candidates are considered of utmost importance.

Realizing the significance of purpose in one's life and plans, the Baptist Student Union has chosen for its theme this year:

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: . . . who made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant and was made in the likeness of men": Philippians 2:5-7.

This theme expresses our purpose. We have tried to keep it ever before us in the activities and various phases of the B. S. U. program for the year: vespers, family altar, Campus B. S. U. meetings, mission activities, workshops, parties, retreats, and conventions. This purpose is the spirit that breathes through the B. S. U. and makes its activities vital and worthwhile; it is the spirit of Christ, who lived to show us God and his purpose for us. When our hearts are set in this one direction and we see the our hearts are set in this one direction and we see the campus-wide—world-wide—scope of the spirit which motivates the work of the B. S. U., we must become a part of it and give our time, our money, and our-selves. May we as Christians always proclaim:

"We are all one body,
Tho' from east and west;
We would serve the Master;
Put us to the test.

Thus with hearts united, Sin we shall subdue With His love unfailing, Spirit of B. S. U."

Astrotekton

"Carry your bags?" "Did you remember to bring your toothbrush?" "You say you live on third Stringfield? Oh, but I love to climb stairs." The Astro Red Cap Service ushered in another class of freshmen as well as another year of fellowship under the yellow and white banner of the Astro Society.

Rush Week began with a kick-off, with Miss Cunningham doing the honors. Throughout the week surprises kept springing up-the big pep rally on Johnson Hall steps, with Carolina, Duke, Wake Forest, and State participating; the prophecy of gods and goddesses to the new students; the freak show in the court bringing gales of laughter; the fearful sign in the skies turning out to be a mighty airship dropping tokens of love and words of wisdom; the chorus girls livening up the dining hall at dinner time; the atmosphere produced at the Le Cafe Boheme party; the picnic at Allen's Pond. All of these activities came to a climax on Decision Day when it was announced that the Astros were victorious!!!!

Throughout the year monthly programs have been presented with the idea of getting more and more student participation in the activities of the society. In all that is done, the Astro Society continues in the attempt to grasp the meaning found in the motto, "He builds too low who builds beneath the stars."

JANE LUTHER Sergeant-at-Arms PHYLLIS CUNNINGHAM. .

Philaretian

"Be a Phi! Be a Phi!" "Put Phi colors in your heart." "She's the sweetheart of all the Phis." The words of these songs are indicative of the Philaretia spirit and activities, particularly during Rush Week. They echoed back and forth across the court as the loyal lovers of Phido rushed on their way to the hut for the bonfire, invited brother Phis from Wake Forest to sing and perform magic in the dining hall, gave out favors at night, or formed the Phi heart in the court. The climax of rushing, characterized by fun, stirring incidents, and work, was the candlelight service around the fountain. Later, there was a lull while members climbed step-ladders to drape lavender and white crepe paper in the dining hall, gathered Phi bears for the tables, and dug up lavender sweaters to lend to the new students.

After Decision Day, there were even more Phis to share in the programs at the regular meetings, in the presentation of a Christmas play, in the fun at the Christmas party, and in the work of giving the play on Society Night. These members maintained a spirit of friendship and love, having deeply implanted in their hearts the Phi motto, "Plain living and high thinking." And always, they rejoice in singing the song that they love best:

"Lead on, O Philaretia fair, Lead upward day by day."

The Oak Leaves

Scraps of paper with typewriting on them; a jumble of pictures of various persons and groups or of campus scenes—these are the raw materials that the staff put together to make a finished product—the 1950 edition of the Oak Leaves.

There were times when the staff seemed to have nothing to do; then, suddenly, there would seem to be more work than the staff could ever accomplish. Finally, the material had all been checked, okayed, and neatly typed. Then, it was out of our hands and in the hands of the engraver and of the printer. It came back in the form of pages which had to be proofread. After the proofreading, the staff knew that soon the finished Oak Leaves would be ready for distribution.

At last the day, for which we had worked and waited so long, finally came; and the OAK LEAVES, with all its perfections and imperfections, was delivered to the student body. We, the staff of the 1950 OAK LEAVES, are justly proud of this book, and we hope that it will long remind you of happy days at Meredith.

The Twig

"There will be an important meeting of The Twig Staff in the Publication Room Monday night at seven." The announcement was as simple as that, but 0-0-0h what followed? Some people are under the impression that what takes place in an atom is miraculous, but they should just be on hand to see what happens in that little dinly lit room on first Jones. The series of events that takes place there every other week would put any atom and its nuclear fission to shame.

Don't misunderstand! This isn't a complaint. The job is done now, and all of us can sit down and look back over the whole year's work and smile at all the things that we wept over. We can laugh at the trips to the printer's in the rain and at the fact that our news was sometimes a day old because the papers didn't arrive on the day of the dateline. Tears flowed like April showers then, but ah, memories.

The life of a newspaper worker has never been easy, and when the worker happens to be doing all her work extracturricularly, the burden is almost too much to carry. However, the staff of The Tuig this year has done what at times seemed impossible, and they have done it in such a way as to carry forward The Twig's tradition of "only the best."

The Acorn

Whether it was fall, winter, or spring outside, the Acom has duly recorded student opinions and thoughts, both on the seasons of the year and on other subjects which came to their minds. "Literary magazine" is the term given to this publication, but often the editor had to push a little to encourage Meredith students to make the description fit—or maybe the contributors were just shy about seeing their work in black-and-white for all the world to gaze upon.

Whatever the method of getting the poems, essays, short stories, and sundry creations into print, the end accomplished, that of publishing each bi-monthly issue of the Arom, seems to have well-justified the means. The task of going around the vicious circle of assignments, typing, make-up, ads, and proofing was not always easy, but everyone from the editor and business manager on down seems to have lived through the grind—despite dire predictions to the contrary when the going was rough.

Looking back over the year's issues, the Acorn staff hopes that it has produced a work which has with a moderate degree of success reflected student opinion and given enjoyment to Acorn readers; and if it has occasionally stirred up serious thought, none of the hard work that went into these issues will be regretted.

Little Theatre

The show must and does go on, as actors and crew, technicians and public relations committees find their niche and give the public a production, finished to detail. We've discovered that there are endless possibilities in all of us and that our fellow-students can be depended upon in any eventuality.

This year, the major productions were the alltime classic, Owr Town by Thornton Wilder, in the fall, and, in the spring, a medieval morality play Everyman, which we proudly presented in an exterior setting.

Besides our regular meetings, we held workshops in the various fields of theater art for those incurably inoculated with grease-paint, and formed a speech choir which entertained in chapel and at other meetings. The Little Theatre also sponsored the three one-act plays presented by the two societies and the Freshman Class.

Little Theatre membership is open to all students who earn twenty-five points by participation in the activities of the organization.

Education Club

Students today—teachers tomorrow. The Education Club, one of the largest on the Meredith campus, helps to bridge the gap between life as a student and experience as a teacher. In the fall the Education Club was reorganized by its officers and sponsors. To make the club meaningful and helpful to its members, we have included programs on visual aid in education, lectures on mental health in schools, and reports on such subjects as the White House Conference. Of course, there was our annual Christmas party for the children of Methodist Orphanage; this year the club entertained twenty-six boys and girls by presenting a program of nursery rhymes, group singing, story telling, and refreshments. Always in our year of work we have tried to supply for each other the hints and aids that will make Meredith's students better teachers tomorrow.

Meredith Student League of Women Voters

Because Meredith students are among the future voters, law-makers, and office-holders of the United States, the Student League of Women Voters was organized on the campus in 1930 to encourage its members to become more intelligent in affairs of local and national interest.

Each year, Meredith participates in the Student Legislature held at the Capitol. Our Student League of Women Voters has its big day at this time, for it is the duty of the organization to draft a bill to be presented for passage by the Legislature. This year, the Student League drafted a bill to put jailers on a permanent salary basis.

This and the other activities of the Student League offer practical experience in the realm of politics for students who are the voters of the future.

International Relations Club

What was the top news story this month? What happened in the United States? In the world?

The members of the International Relations Club are very much interested in these questions as they believe that an understanding of yesterday and today will prepare them for the events of tomorrow. They believe that understanding and friendship with all peoples will break tensions and wear down the barriers which cause so many problems.

To gain this understanding, the International Relations Club has, at its monthly meetings, speakers who have some knowledge of a current situation. They welcome as friends members of all nations and races.

The International Relations Club seeks to promote the unity of mankind, and they have made a good beginning on the Meredith campus.

Canaday Math Club

A trip to the State College Statistics Laboratory, or to the Duke University Mathematics Laboratory; a discussion on how geometry can be made interesting and fun to students—these are some of the activities of the Canaday Mathematics Club when they get together for their monthly meetings.

The math majors have also found that there is fun in mathematics. After the business of the club is finished, they rack their brains to figure out mathematical riddles or to prove that two plus two does not equal five, even though Dr. Canaday has a proof that it does.

Members say that it is worth being a math major to be able to join the Canaday Mathematics Club.

Barber Science Club

Atom bombs?? Electrons . . . Protons . . . Neutrons??? Well, maybe! Honestly, though, we don't make atom bombs, nor do we break down the Uranium atom, nor do we attempt to build atomic piles, but we do discuss these and many other topics in the hope of broadening our knowledge of the advancing scientific world around us.

What do you know about viruses and germs and the like? Early in the year several student members reported on the latest developments in these fields. Did you know that the soil gives us some of the most potent medicines that we use today? Or did you know that experimenters are now raising animals in a germless world?

Then one program was dedicated to learning about water systems, their supply and purification. In December the club sponsored a trip to the Morehead Planetarium at Chapel Hill to hear Dr. Marshall's "Star of Bethlehem." Several outside speakers addressed the club during the spring semester. We also secured a very interesting film concerning the petroleum industry.

Did someone mention Beaufort? Yes, Beaufort, North Carolina, brings back memories. For two consecutive years the club, composed of all science majors and those taking elective courses in science, planned a wonderful week-end trip to the marine laboratories in Beaufort.

The future of this club is like the future of science—full of untold potentialities.

Freeman Religion Club

Although the Freeman Religion Club is limited to Meredith students, the club is keenly aware that it is an inseparable part of a world-wide Christian youth interest. The members seek to become growingly conscious of this fellowship through programs that give a better understanding of religion in many ages and areas.

Representative programs for this year included: an outdoor supper meeting at Dr. McLain's with Arnold Nash, an English scholar, leading a discussion on "The Growth and Significance of Student Christian Work around the World"; a film on the 1949 Christian Youth Meeting in Europe; a vivid presentation of the life and work of Albert Schweitzer by Dr. McNeill Poteat; and a joint meeting with the International Relations Club with Dr. and Mrs. Sherwood Eddy leading a discussion on related political and Christian problems.

Colton English Club

The purpose of the Colton English Club is to arouse and maintain interest in phases of literature and composition not provided for in the curriculum. In developing our theme for 1949-1950, "Literature and the Other Arts," we have been ably assisted by members of the faculty: Miss Peterson gave a talk on American Folk Ballads; Miss Rosenberger, on "Literature and the Opera;" Miss Murphy directed the speech choir in a charming recital; and Dr. Preston delighted us with an informal talk at our annual dinner meeting.

In December a few sophomores, chosen for special interest or achievement in the field of English, were elected to membership in the club. In the second semester plans for the maintenance of the Julia Hamlet Harris Browsing Room, which is sponsored by the Club, were discussed and adopted.

Tomorrow's Business Women

Getting and keeping a job requires more than a knowledge of how to operate machines efficiently and how to obey orders. One must know how to dress for the job and how to act—at all times! This is the reason Myra Stone, the program chairman, chose "Appearance and Etiquette on the Job" as the theme of our programs for the year. To carry out this theme we had fashion skits, etiquette programs, a film about secretaries, and visits from graduates.

Among her other duties as vice president, Carolyn Crook attended to the providing of refreshments at our meetings, while Peggy Thornton reminded us about our dues, and Ann Fouche reported our activities to the paper. Joyce Bailey kept the records of the meetings, over which Imogene Narron presided.

We are looking forward to tomorrow.

Bee Hive

There's nothing better than food when you're hungry, and there's no place on the Meredith campus so handy as our "Bee-Hive." The purpose of the Bee-Hive is to please and serve the students by supplying a varied choice in snacks, school supplies, and even "beauty-aids" such as lipstick, cologne and the like. Some of the additions to the stocklist for the year '49-'50 are scrapbooks, sweaters, and "get well" cards! Who knows? If it's the desire of the student body, we may be selling television sets this time next year!

Alpha Rho Tau

You don't even have to own a paint-spattered smock or a black beret to be a member of the Alpha Rho Tau. Just a sincere interest in any phase of the art world is our only requirement for membership.

One month's meeting is spent in figure sketching; the next month might bring a fellow artist to share his ideas with us. Trips to the State Art Gallery and to other places of interest to the art world are sponsored. Not to be overlooked are the stimulating discussions on topics varying from esthetic ideals to Van Gogh's use of color. Everyone has a chance to share his views and see them in comparison with those of other aspiring young geniuses of the art world.

The informality of the Alpha Rho Tau creates an atmosphere of congeniality felt by all who share its fellowship.

Granddaughters' Club

We take pride in being styled the "junior alumnae" of Meredith. Since Meredith is the Alma Mater of our mothers, we were born into this club and are, therefore, the granddaughters of Meredith.

During the year, the Granddaughters' Club carries on several undertakings as the members strive to reach their objective—that of promoting a feeling of closeness between Meredith and the alumnae. This year these included the sponsorship of the Needlework Guild on the campus and special projects such as the "family tree." This Meredith family tree illustrates the kinship of the alumnae and the students as its branches are composed of those members of the same family who have attended Meredith.

Other activities included after-dinner coffees and the spring Mother-Daughter Luncheon, all of which helped to promote the feeling of closeness between Meredith, her daughters, and her granddaughters.

Home Economics Club

"Creation supplies us with just two kinds of things: necessities and extras." Necessities we get in our regular classes; extras we get in our Home Economics Club.

In our programs this year we found "life's extras" through guest speakers, exhibits, demonstrations, and films covering some of the cultural phases of homemaking.

Of course, we could not forget one of life's most valuable extras—friends. By corresponding with girls in our "adopted" school in Germany we have found new friends. By attending state and province workshops we meet both old and new. We hope our club is adding spice to our home economics program on the campus.

Sociology Club

When Alexander Pope wrote, "The proper study of mankind is man," he didn't know that some centuries later Meredith's Sociology Club would be motivated by the same opinion. Believing that not all the study should be textbookish, the club has this year concentrated on the portion of mankind in our own state. Speakers have described North Carolina's varied governmental departments which serve its citizens. The club, too, has tried to serve mankind a bit by providing entertainment for county home residents. A Christmas dinner and a May picnic emphasize the "social" as well as the "ology."

Hoof-Print Club

Where are all of the members of the Hoof-Print Club going? To their new club house, of course, to brew a pot of coffee before starting on a supper ride or an early morning ride. This new club house, with curtains at the windows, pillows in the chairs, a rug painted on the floor, and—we hope—knotty pine on the walls, is the scene of meetings at which plans for the gymkhana and the horse show, and changes in the constitution are discussed by Meredith's horse-lovers. That all of this talk leads to action is evidenced by the fact that the riders lead the Palio Parade up the drive on homecoming day. If you see some horses silhouetted against the sky, you can be sure it is the Hoof-Print Club, led by their sponsor, Mrs. Miriam Hitt, cantering off for a wonderful ride over the trails and paths that take them through the woods and into the meadows.

Choir

The white-robed angels, under the capable direction of Dr. Cooper, this year gained inspiration as they performed in the new auditorium. The choir has a varied list of programs to tuck away in its memory book. They appeared on a program for the Baptist State Convention, and performed during Religious Focus Week and Commencement Week. Two of the highlights of this year's work were the Christmas Carol Festival held at the Memorial Auditorium in collaboration with different choirs in Raleigh, and the Christmas concert, of which a portion was later recorded by WPTF to be heard on Christmas morning. In the spring several concerts were presented over WPTF. Through Dr. Cooper's interpretation of music the choir's diminuendos and crescendos were able to excite and soothe, leaving the audience calm or trembling but forever—remembering.

Glee Club

Meredith's Glee Club is one of the most active organizations on the campus. In addition to our two rehearsals a week, we have given selections during Religious Emphasis Week and programs at various civic clubs in the city. Our tour in the spring of 1949 to Wilmington, New Bern, Kinston, and points east was such a success that the spring of 1950 saw us again packed on the bus for an extended tour of the state. It was work—learning the German for the Brahms' "Liebeslieder Waltzes," working to make the altos balance the sopranos, memorizing feverishly for our Glee Club exams—but when it was all over and when the tour and spring concert were behind us, all of us knew we had found the effort rewarding and the experience one to remember.

McDowell Music Club

The membership of the MacDowell Music Club is not limited to music majors but is open to any Meredith student. Bettic Compton, president, and Mr. Pratt, sponsor, make the music club one of the most active on the campus. At its meetings the members either discuss current events in the music world, which might include the review of a future concert and the listening to recordings, or display their own talents in vocal and instrumental performances. A future Madame Curie or Kirsten Flagstad could find much to interest and to entertain her in the MacDowell Music Club.

Sigma Alpha Iota

The youngest organization on the campus is the Beta Zeta Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, a national professional music fraternity for women. Members of the organization are music majors chosen by the local chapter upon faculty recommendation, for excellence in scholarship, musical ability, and vital interest in music.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Rachel Rosenberger the chapter seeks to increase interest in musical activities by the participation of the members in public performances on and off campus and by the sponsoring of concerts of visiting artists. The music store on the campus is owned and run by the fraternity.

Because Sigma Alpha Iota is a national organization, its members have the opportunity for wide social and professional contacts and for active interest in musical projects of broad scope.

The patronesses of the Beta Zeta Chapter are Dr. Lillian Parker Wallace, Mrs. Harry E. Cooper, and Mrs. Carlyle Campbell.

"Respectfully submitted" an orthodox closing for those hectic preparations and informal sessions listed so precisely in a secretary's minutes. A hundred little mishaps—they were calamities then now almost forgotten. Flashbacks of the smoky Crabtree week-end; a real "back to the farmer" movement at the Corn Huskin' Bee; pride in a superlative Palio: Stunt Night in the new auditorium; caroling with Christmas cheer and cold noses; the straightening-up during Posture Week; the charm of May Day; a Faculty-Student Playday full of fun and laughter. We remember the relief found in play; the evidences of good sportsmanship; applauding the folk dancers, the creative rhythms group, the body mechanics group at Chaple Hill.

Nor shall we forget those who labored without glory and stood behind it all—the "They also served's" who worked over mimeograph machines and typewriters, over the organizing and the follow-ups. We tried new skills, learned new sports and, most important—had fun!

It was hard work, fraught with frustration and occasional spurts of anger; yet in retrospect the year stands as a proud and successful example of group co-operation, another firm support for an important future.

The Meredith College Monogram Club is an honorary organization composed of those girls who have earned 1,000 points through participation in the various activities sponsored by the Athletic Association. The purpose is not to encourage sporadic displays of athletic prowess, but rather to promote all-round interest in healthful recreation on the Meredith campus. The points necessary for entrance into the Monogram Club are earned by a genuine interest in play and a display of good sportsmanship. Any girl here, if she has the honest enthusiasm necessary, can earn her Monogram.

Silver Shield

Moving on our campus is a spirit which desires for the students at Meredith the highest in creative living. This is the spirit that characterizes the Silver Shield, the honorary leadership society, as it seeks to create right attitudes and to promote devotion to the ideals of Meredith. Membership is limited to nine senior members, seven of whom are chosen in the spring of the junior year and two in the spring of the senior year. Two associate members are chosen every fall from the junior class. A genuine Christian concern for others as it relates itself to campus life, a dedication to the Christian purpose which gives Meredith meaning, together with attainments in scholarship are the criteria by which students are elected to membership in the Silver Shield.

Ellen Goldston

Josephine Snow President

Kappa Nu Sigma

Kappa Nu Sigma Honor Society takes its name from three Greek words—Kallos, Nous, Sophia—meaning beauty, soundmindedness, and intelligence. These words characterize the kind of scholarship that Kappa Nu Sigma has tried to further on the Meredith campus. Those students who have achieved a high scholastic standing over a period of two years make up the membership of this society. An annual lecture and banquet honoring the two juniors who have met the qualifications of membership is sponsored by the society. This year our lecturer was Dr. Charles B. Shaw, Librarian at Swarthmore College. In the spring the society awards to the freshman having the highest scholastic standing a scholarship for the following year.

Alpha Psi Omega

The Alpha Psi Omega represents perhaps a whole picture of the total of enthusiastic work for the Meredith dramatic productions. It is the honorary dramatics fraternity, which honors Little Theatre members who have carned fifty or more points. The members are those who have tried the heavy greasepaint, acted a few extra lines, hammered a few extra nails, painted an extra flat or two; they finally have been recognized and thus they are the ones who, as Alpha Psi Omega members, continue to work along with the Little Theatre, showing that the interest in playmaking is a growing proposition at Meredith.

Members: Mickey Bowen, Doris Concha, Betty Moore, Gazelle Moore, Dickie Phillips, Sally Lou Taylor, Elizabeth Zulalian

Sigma Pi Alpha

Guten Morgen! Buenos dias! Bonjour! These greetings are all common at the meetings of the Phi Kappa Chapter of Sigma Pi Alpha, national honorary modern language fraternity. This fraternity seeks to recognize those who are known for their scholarship and interest in modern languages, and also to develop greater interest among other students. The meetings of Sigma Pi Alpha provide information of various foreign countries through lectures and parties. Those who have acquired interest in foreign countries through travel or reading may be invited to become honorary members.

History

To chronicle a year at Meredith would produce, indeed, a "strange eventful history." Of course it was just a year, one year. But in spite of the college calendar, our class schedule cards, and our own patterns of interests, we must agree with Mr. Ralph McGill who told us on Founders' Day, "We believe, we hope, we plan, but we do not know." Of this past year, the part we did not know then was probably to be the best of the year, perhaps for some, the worst. The history here is an outline. You may complete it.

The year, as always, began with freshmen. We who knew, managed to mind our own business and maintain an oblique observation of the class of '54, all at the same time. The burden of being categorical they bore very well, on occasions even looking away. They also discovered that the necessity of standing in lines made stuff for talk equal to that on the split-personality of the weather. They learned a great deal. They sensed, I think, that, although upperclass interest in them was definitely friendly, it was becoming tinged—either yellow or purple. For while they dwelt in the bewilderment of tests for which they did not have to study, with classes that apparently were not concerned with grades, and with streams of parties for their entertainment, Maggie and Charlotte were gathering troops for the siege.

Rush Week had to wait a little. For in the meantime Meredith had a birthday and a new auditorium to christen. The occasion was as big as the cake the Home Ec Department had made for Meredith, and on the morning of September 27 the guests came. In front of the big green doors the alumnae waited, the faculty members and speakers in ceremonial garb, and finally, the huddle of Seniors, self-conscious in unaccustomed caps and gowns. The celebration of Meredith's golden anniversary began. The sensation we felt in that auditorium was as new as the building itself. The gentle shuffling of feet was only reminiscent of the creaking noises one could have heard in the old auditorium. Perhaps for a moment we missed them.

We thought not only of that old building but of old Meredith, of names we had heard before, of names we had not heard before, finally of new Meredith, as we listened to Dr. Mary Lynch Johnson tell the story of the people who gave us Meredith. And we hoped to keep the charge of Senator Frank Graham to make that Founders' Day a "re-dedication of Meredith to its creative part in seeking to make a world in which all people, under God, can live, work, and dream their dreams of a better day of freedom and peace." Mr. McEill of the Allana Constitution concluded the important day reminding us that our responsibility extended also to part of the nation in which we lived, to the Southland, needy for people who care.

And then our thoughts shifted again. The Rush Week attack overwhelmed us. Weary Astros gathered the freshmen at Allen's Pond, in all hilarity. And on a rainy night the Phis packed them in the Hut for the annual bonfire. The dew-bedraggled groups singing under sleepy windows grew larger each day. We "rushed them in the morning," they "rushed them in the night." Finally, when Rush Week loomed too large to bear, Friday night called time. Phis and Astros set up separate camps at either end of the dining hall, cheerfully, but with admirable restraint, fortifying each with balloons and crepe paper (and Phido bears) for the Saturday morning surrender. The uncertainty arising from the apparently equal division of new yellows and purples at breakfast was finally dispelled when the important freshmen had been cheered into the new auditorium. The grapevine sent the count out to the line of old members: Astros, 118; Phis, 113.

After that event we let the year go along, carrying with it the hockey season, speedball, football (elsewhere), the Corn Huskin' Bee (when will we all learn to pick up paw-paws?), and another bus-load to the B.S.U. Convention, this time in Winston-Salem, but we stopped short for Palio and Stunt. It was the year for the seniors to win; the dark hours of marching and stumbling around the basement of the new auditorium paid off for Jason, his ship and his Grecians, in spite of the juniors' "Good Neighbor Policy" and clicking castanets, in spite of the sophomore "Belles" and the Coke machines and Bendixes of the freshmen. And to this day, by the way, somebody can be heard ever so often striding to class, humming, "Here are the Coke ma-a-chines. . . ."

Stunt gave the new auditorium its theatrical debut. All members of the casts, as well as the stage crews, demonstrated and tested completely the delightfully elaborate lighting system. And backstage none of the producers of the stunts were forced to rub elbows. In fact, nobody got in anybody's way. The freshmen, still mindful of the birthday year, called up Meredith of the past. The winning sophomores set up a woodland fantasy on stage; the juniors—ah, those juniors—plunged the stage into the murky darkness of Hell, while the seniors managed to move an Egyptian temple on stage for a discovery of a lost mummy (the mummy caused almost as much excitement before Stunt, when it reposed before the window in the auditorium basement). The Little Theatre produced Thornton Wilder's Om Town, and set the Student Body to worrying about the lack of scenery. In the spring, by the way, they tried something new again, and presented an outdoor production of Everyman.

At any rate Thanksgiving came on time, although it somehow coincided with Christmas (Raleigh held its Christmas parade the day after and the stores were ready for Christmas shoppers.) The new choral group set the Thanksgiving spirit in chapel one day, a spirit that we could scarcely have been prevented from having. And then those holidays went the way holidays do go.

Christmas caroling comes but once a year, with the formal dinner, the big dining hall Christmas tree, and "Jingle Bells" to the accompaniment of Christmas, sleeping late, home folks, New Year's Eve, all vanished and we were on this side of forty-nine. We counted the new rings, the new fraternity pins, the amount of home work we did over the holidays, and pretty soon were settled in the library, in the art labs, the science labs, in the music building, or in our rooms playing bridge; in short, we did all those things we had been doing all along. Exams appeared, a slight threat that loomed larger with each new assignment. About the time the Creative Rhythmics Group gave its concert we discovered that we had reached the last chapters of our books, and we resigned ourselves to that mad frenzy which we often call studying. Then exams were over; we didn't really fool ourselves, and the results were not unexpected.

Spring eventually followed exams, although it had been showing itself off and on all year. With it came basketball, the softball season, the Folk Dance Concert, Religious Focus Week, vespers held outside, and of course, Faculty-Student Play Day. Who would forget Play Day, a leisurely and springy occasion, the day when one always plays tennis, ping pong, volley ball, softball, croquet, checkers, and bridge, when one only intended to play croquet, checkers, and bridge. And then there's the day after Play Day when a faculty member is heard to admit that he was still aware of that dash to third base the afternoon before. And we felt a little worn ourselves, whether we did or did not say so, and were a little too conscious of a sunburned nose.

One event followed another but we mustn't forget that school was continuing along with them, and that they depended on that fact. The music majors seemed to disappear completely into the music building, and then one day the graduating recitals began, followed by art exhibits and so on. The societies had their plays: somewhere on the way Easter came, and spring holidays. There was school still, term papers (the freshmen tried their first, of course), labs all afternoon, class reports, library assignments and books to be read. But May appeared, and we had May Day. The high school students came to visit, but without being inhospitable, one must say that they were overshadowed by the importance of the day, the queen, her attendants, and other entertainments (these last included activities by the sophomores, who began singing to the queen at seven o'clock that morning, who arranged the throne for the queen, and finally sang several more times before the day ended; by the dance groups; and of course by the riders who gave their annual horse show).

We knew when May came that school was about to end, the finality of that ending depending on our academic classification. And the final events to accompany the last bit of school were also on the way again. We had exams, and finally, commencement. Commencement involved the Glee Club Concert, Society Night, Class Day (oh yes, the sophomores arose ver-r-y early again, this time to make the daisy chain for their "big six ters") and at last, graduating exercises.

What more can one say about the year? Should one mention the sunset on one side of the campus, or the sunrise on the other side (or how many people see it rise?), the telephone calls, the parents who are so very happy to have you at home, whom you are rather happy about, too; the discovery that the paper you sat up all night doing was due next Friday instead of this Wednesday: the fact that State did or did not win that basketball game; Sunday dinners; church; scrambled eggs and bacon in the kitchenette, lukewarm Nescafe; the breath-of-spring that started to bloom about Christmas—one would say too much.

The things we didn't expect to happen; the things we hoped would happen, even if they didn't, the days we walked from our room to the arts building and back, or skidded into the cafeteria just before the door closed; the hundreds of pencils we have lost and sharpened; the notebook paper we have wasted; the number of times we walked across the floor in front of the post office; our tiny, used student bank book; the number of times we didn't get "A" on room check (dust under beds)—all these would tell the story of the year better.

Then, again, there is the new auditorium, not too complete, not too old to be old enough for us to know it, new enough to be exciting. Perhaps the auditorium and the year are alike.
